A "BROAD A" STENOGRAPHER

Manufacturer Advertises for One Who Can Take Dictation in an English or Boston Accent.

Last week a hardware manufacturer advertised for a stenographer "accustomed to take dictation from some one with an English or Boston accent."

"I want a girl familiar with that kind of lingo so there will be fewer mistakes in our correspondence than the last girl we had managed to inject," he said. "She knew how to typewrite, and I guess she was fairly proficient in pot books, but she never could get the hang of our gibberish. My partner does most of the dictating. To hear him talk is to run up against a regular fusillade of broad a's and rising inflections. The girl simply could not make out what he was driving at, and some of the letters she turned out were masterpieces of inaccuracy. The accent of a man who dictates is an important factor in correspondence, and both employer and employed would benefit by a broad 'a' stenographer sticking to a broad 'a' office."

TURNED HIM DOWN

Lord De Broke—it's a terrible thing, don't you know, Miss Billyuns, for a chappy to have to go through life all alone.

Miss Billyuns—Why don't you employ a valet?

HAD NOTHING ON AUTHOR.

Robert Wickliffe Woolley, the writer, found it necessary not long ago to take a trip west. On the dining car of the train he saw that he had in his pocket ten cents in change, his smallest banknote being one for $50. He handed this to the porter, who went to the end of the car for a conference with the conductor. "I'm very sorry about this," said the conductor, standing in front of Woolley and toying with the big bill, "but we haven't the change for $50. We'll just take your address and send you the change." Woolley calmly reached over and took possession of the banknote. "You've got nothing on me," he said. "I'll take the address of the railroad and send the price of the meal."

THE OPEN FIRE.

"The open fire is a primitive, elemental thing," says John Burroughs in Country Life in America. "It cheers with more than mere heat; it is a bit of the red heart of nature laid bare; it is a dragon of the prince docile and friendly there in the corner. What pictures; what activity; how social; how it keeps up the talk. You are not permitted to forget it for a moment. How it responds when you nudge it! How it rejoices when you feed it! Why, an open fire in your room is a whole literature. It supplements your library as nothing else in the room does or can."

ALL FIXED.

"I think I'll propose at the party tonight."

"No, you won't."

"Why won't I?"

"My sister knows the young lady in question, and it has been arranged for you to propose at the ball next week."

MIGHT BE WORSE.

Mrs. Newpop—Everybody says the baby looks like you, dear.

Mr. Newpop—Well, I'm glad people don't say I look like the baby.

A TOAST.

Scribbles—Here's to my last book of poems.

Critics—Here's hoping it is your last.

Associated Charities.

Some days ago an organization was perfected in this city to be known as the "Associated Charities" of Lexington.

The objects of the association is to bring about a systematic method of assisting those who are really in need and to get rid of imposters. The second object is to relieve the business people and all others from indiscriminate giving and to afford them an opportunity to see and know that their money is spent where it will do the most good.

To this end a finance committee was appointed and will, in a few days wait upon the people of the town and request them to subscribe to this fund, the same to paid out and spent upon those who are found worthy, after thorough investigation. Each person who subscribes will be given a card marked as follows "We are members of the Associated Charities of Lexington and contribute through them." It is believed that this method will get rid of a large number of tramps and impostors and permit a great amount of worthy charity to be done in a systematic way.

J. R. Moorehead was elected chairman, J. G. Graddy, secretary and Claude Marquis, treasurer of the new organization.

COMFORTING WORDS.

Many a Lexington Household Will Find Them So.

To have the pains and aches of a bad back removed; to be entirely free from annoying, dangerous urinary disorders is enough to make any kidney sufferer grateful. To tell how this great change can be brought about will prove comforting words to hundreds of Lexington readers.

G. S. Mitchell, farmer, Lexington, Mo., says: "My kindeys and bladder gave me a great deal of trouble. I had difficulty in retaining the kidney secretions and the physicians I consulted seemed unable to give me any permanent relief. Hearing of Doan's Kidney Pills, I procured a supply at Crenshaw & Young's Drug Store and it did not take them long to remove my trouble. I heartily recommend this excellent remedy."

The above statement was given in May 1908 and on April 30, 1909, Mr. Mitchell said: "I value Doan's Kidney Pills as highly today as when I previously recommended them. When hard work brings on a slight attack of backache, I take this remedy and it never fails to give me immediate relief. I consider Doan's kidney Pills the best kidney medicine in existence."

"TRIAL SHORTHAND LESSON"

100 words written with 100 strokes. Eclectic Shorthand speaks for itself. You can both read and write this lesson in one hour or less. Try it, and mail sample of your work for correction, we will then send you two additional lessons, free of charge.

SHORTHAND LESSON No. 1

Memorize the following characters:

m n a o i l h u o n

All words in shorthand are spelled by sound. There are five positions, representing the five vowels, and by writing any of the above consonants on i position which is the line, the letter i will follow each written character, thus:

a e m l n i n t d i h k n t t t u t u t

Now if this is true of i position, it is also true of all positions, thus:

a e m l n i n t d i h k n t t t u t u t

NOTE—A dot on i position is I; on o position O or one; on u position you.

Read and write the following sentences several times:

Ma I see you! He ma no me. Do you no me? I see I no you. Do you see the wa to go to the set? Ma we go to! You no he ma li to you.

KEY TO THE ABOVE SENTENCES
